

A Message from Quintin E. Primo III, Chairman of the Board and
JoAnn Hanson, President & CEO of CIG

How can we seek to address social and racial inequities?

By leveraging the power of one of the most potent forces in the world - Money.

The Episcopal Church has a long history of outreach to all members of our communities with programs to address issues such as employment, healthcare, education, employment, healthcare and homelessness.

The Church Investment Group (CIG) works with Episcopal endowments to adopt Environmental, Social & Governance (ESG) Investing where strong financial performance also produces social and environmental impact.

CIG works on the “S” in ESG directly through our Episcopal endowments’ investment choices and through corporate engagement with the Interfaith Center on Corporate Responsibility (ICCR) and Principles of Responsible Investing (PRI).

Companies that prioritize positive treatment of their workers have outperformed both during the Covid Crisis and over the past five years. Companies with greater racial and gender diversity have higher innovation revenue and Earnings before Income and Tax (EBIT) margins.

Your Episcopal endowment can achieve a Triple Bottom Line: financial, social, and environmental results.
